DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to the request for continued examination (RCE) of 18 April 2006. The indicated allowability of the subject matter of claims 7 and 17-20 is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered prior art (Becker in U.S. Patent No. 5,093,988).

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1,2,5,6,8,9,10,13,16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jones et al. in U.S. Patent No. 5,276,298 in view of Becker in U.S. Patent No. 5,093,988. Jones discloses laser welding with an Nd: YAG laser (a known solid state laser) a bimetallic element (element 6) with a connecting element comprising a connecting braid (element 8). Jones does not disclose overlapping and coupling the elements to produce a lap weld. Becker teaches lap welding (see figure 5) a connecting element to a braid (element 94; e.g. see column 10, lines 47-48) and that the welding can be accomplished by a laser beam (see column 10, lines 53-61). It would have been obvious to adapt Jones et al. in view of Becker to provide this to more strongly weld the bimetallic element to the connector with connecting braids. Regarding claims 6, 13 and 16, Jones et al. discloses using the device in an integral circuit breaker (see column 1, lines 13-14).

5. Claims 3, 11, 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Jones et al. in U.S. Patent No. 5,276,298 in view of Becker in U.S. Patent No. 5,093,988 as applied to claim 2 above, and further in view of Matsubara et al. in Japan Patent No. 54-116,356. Matsubara et al. teaches a laser path has a curved profile (see figure 2). It would have been obvious to adapt Jones et al. in view of Becker and Matsubara et al. to provide this to achieve a weld of high reliability.

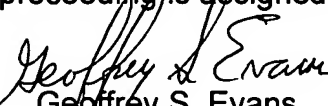

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Hattori in Japan Patent No. 2001-68,171 discloses a bus bar lap welded by a laser beam to a tab terminal. Bennett in U.S. Patent No. 3,781,513 discloses arc welding braided copper leads.
